

Elementary School Board Report January 17, 2022

- Teachers returned after break with a teacher work day and the gift of time was greatly appreciated. Students were excited to be back after break!
- Throughout our first week back from break we focused on reteaching our PBIS TRIBE expectations throughout the building. Students have done a wonderful job following our TRIBE expectations.
- 4th graders are finishing up their PBL projects and will be having a gallery walk for their inventions sometime in late January or early February.
- FAST testing has started and we're excited to see how students have grown this year. We use these assessments to help guide our instruction for both the whole group instructions and small group interventions.
- Teachers engaged in professional development on effective math practices with Sara Seick Monday (1/17) morning to begin building our knowledge on math before we begin the curriculum selection process next year. We also had a follow up training with Wonders in the afternoon.
- Elementary special education teachers have been able to start their own weekly PLC meetings, which is something new for them. In the past they have individually joined grade level teams when needed, but now they have a designated time to collaborate together.
- Our math interventionist, Jill Kraai, has joined our Elementary team and has begun working with 4th grade students.
- We have a planning coming up for our elementary fundraiser to determine what the fundraiser this year will be.
